SILVER NOT RECOGNIZED

REPUBLICAN CLUBS IGNORE IT IN THEIR RESOLUTIONS.The League is Not to Endeavor to Influence the Action of Any National, State, County or Municipal Conventions—Connecticut
Men Elected as Vice Presidents.

Cleveland, June 20.—It was 11 o'clock before the convention was called to order this morning by President Tracy. The delegates were present in force, but there was a lack of interest on account of the overshadowing importance of the meeting of the committee on resolutions, in session at the Hollenden hotel. The committee on rules reported that the rules formulated by Thomas B. Reed were good enough for them. Senator Thurston of Nebraska said he understood Warner Miller of New York was in the city and he was sure the convention would like to hear from the senator.

A committee was sent for Mr. Miller, who spoke in part as follows: "The large number of delegates I see here to-day is an indication that the republican party is still on earth. I am not here to discuss the glorious past of the party, but rather to talk of its present and future. It is fully able to take care of all the great questions which may come up. We have heard it said that the tariff question is no longer one of ruling importance. With that statement I take issue. Any party which in its financial policy does not provide for enough revenue to keep up the country is a failure and must be driven out of existence. Is the democratic party a democratic party for revenue only? Well, it has not produced revenue enough of late to pay the expenses of the country by about $75,000. The republican party stands for a tariff not only for revenue, but for a surplus also. From election day of last fall down to the present time the prospect has been gradually growing better and the full fruition of victory will come to us in 1896, when the republican party will once more take charge of this country. We propose also to restore the protective laws, enlarge and widen them. We propose to increase our merchant marine, if necessary, to Japan and China, just opening to the commerce of the world. Further than all this, the republican party will see to it that the Monroe doctrine does not go into innocent desuetude. We will say to all our sister foreign countries, you are our natural allies and we will be your defender.

"We shall plant our flag on the islands of Hawaii—that is, with their permission. You may call this jingoism if you will. Now, as to the currency question. When I was asked whether or not this question should be discussed in this convention, I said I had never known the republican party to shrink any important question, and I did not believe this convention would. It was suggested to me that perhaps I ought to leave this currency question to the various presidential candidates, but thus far none of the candidates have shown up. I came here expecting to meet the favorite son of New York and the favorite son of Ohio, but one of them stole by us silently last night and the other will probably not make his appearance. I do not blame these candidates for dodging the currency question when it is the business of the national convention to formulate a money plank in its platform.

"Now, briefly as to the silver question. The good this convention has done is to bring the silver men of the west and the gold standard men of the east together. The difference between them is not so great as we have been taught to believe by the press. For myself, I wish to say I am not a gold monometallist. I do not believe it would be wise at this time to have the free coinage of silver maintained. Gold would simply become an article of merchandise. We should at least wait for the co-operation of France and Germany. The probability that we will have international bimetalism is becoming greater every day, and I think it will be assured in a few years. We of the east have no grudge against you of the west. There is no desire in the east to legislate against silver. What advantage can there be to any of our people to depreciate its value? There would be just as much sense in legislating against wheat or petroleum or any other of the great products of the country. Some time ago we legislated against wool and what was the result? Sheep husbandry was almost entirely killed. To return to the question of monometallism, I do not believe the great business of this country can be carried on with gold alone. I believe silver will be restored to its former place in the currency of the world at the proper time.

Resolutions being next in order Mr. Blackwell of Massachusetts called for an endorsement of woman suffrage, which called forth loud cries of "No." "No." He then offered another resolution attacking the democratic party for not taking action in regard to the Armenian atrocities. Their resolutions were offered as fast as the clerk could read them. They provided for sympathy with Cuba, for pensions for the workman, for free silver and for almost everything else, which conventions disapprove. Frank H. Bler of Oklahoma wanted 15 to 1 coinage and a tonnage tax.

S. E. Jones, a colored delegate from the District of Columbia, offered a resolution approving of suffrage in the District of Columbia, and incidentally referring to the United States as a monarchy.

W. A. Schultz of New York offered a resolution that the gold standard should be maintained.

A silver resolution was presented by Senator Yarnum of Colorado. Congressman Robinson, chairman of the committee on resolutions, protested against the further presentation of resolutions which were only duplications of those already introduced and until, he said, the committee would ever be able to consider all of them and make its report within the allotted time. The committee wished to report to-morrow if possible. This turned the tide in favor of the advocates of the suppressing of the resolutions and the convention voted to do so, then taking recess.

Horace G. Knowles of Massachusetts offered the following resolution: Resolved, That this convention recommend to the next national republican convention to consider with the view of incorporating in the party platform a pledge to amend the constitution of the United States, making the term of the president extend over a period of seven years and making the presidents ineligible to re-election. This, like all the other resolutions, was referred to the committee on resolutions.

At the opening of the afternoon session letters and telegrams were read from prominent persons, including Senator Allison, James S. Clarkson, Henry Cabot Lodge, Thomas B. Reed and Chauncey M. Depew. Governor McKinley wrote: "While I cannot make my promise absolute yet I beg to advise you that in all probability I will do myself the honor of accepting your invitation to some time during the convention." The roll of states was called and those who did not have a chance to introduce resolutions came forward.

Numerous financial resolutions were presented. Chairman Nagle reported that the committee on time and place had agreed to recommend Milwaukee as the next place of meeting, the time to be fixed by the executive committee some time after the national party convention. Vice presidents and executive committee members were named including the following:

Rhode Island—D. R. Brown, Henry Tiepie. Vermont—H. E. Parker, H. S. Peck. Connecticut—James A. Howarth of New Haven and Alexander Harbison of Hartford.

The committee on resolutions not yet being ready to report the rules were suspended and the league proceeded to the election of officers.

George E. Greene of New York nominated General McAlpine for the presidency. The mention of the general's name was the signal for tremendous cheering. The nomination was seconded by several delegates. The rules were suspended and the election was held.

For secretary H. E. Churchill nominated John F. Burns of Denver.

Marcus Pulaski nominated William Grant Edens of Springfield, Ill., vice president of the Illinois league. The proceedings were interrupted by the entrance of General McAlpine, who received an enthusiastic welcome. He addressed the convention. He said: "The convention seems to mark the high step in the development of the league. Let me declare emphatically my belief that if the work of the league embraces only the work of holding conventions, the gathering clubs here and there, and the passing of resolutions and taking adjournments the league will prove a failure. While I am at the head of this great organization there shall be but one motto—hard work, resolute action. Republican clubs to accomplish the greatest good must maintain an active organization throughout the entire year. They must increase the knowledge of republican principles, render more stirring the enthusiasm of republican workers. The republican party stands for all that is best in our national history; it demands of its government honest currency and an honest tariff. It believes in the equal rights of all.

The convention then adjourned until to-morrow morning. A gold watch and $1,000 in money were stolen from General McAlpine, the newly elected president, this morning, shortly after his arrival. The committee on resolutions remained in session until 6 o'clock. It decided to present the following platform:

Whereas, Section 13 of the constitution of the Republic League of the United States says "this league shall not in any manner endeavor to influence the action of any national, state, county or municipal convention," the delegates of the Republic League, in convention assembled, do hereby renew their allegiance to the republican party and pledge their best efforts for the success of the party. Believing that this convention has instructions from the republicans of the United States to frame or endorse party platforms, we hereby defer all resolutions in relation to public questions to the republican national convention of 1896 with entire confidence that its action will redound to the prosperity of the people and the continued glory and advancement of the country.

A banquet was held in the Arcade to-night. The structure was magnificently decorated. None but delegates were admitted to the tables. Toasts were responded to as follows:

"Our Party and the New South." Hon. H. Clay Evans of Tennessee; "Grand Old Party." D. D. Woodmansee of Ohio; "Perfidy and Dishonor and Political Integrity." Senator J. C. Burrows of Michigan; "Reactionism in the West," ex-Senator Warner Miller; "The Woman's Republican Association," Mrs. J. Ellen Foster of Washington; "The National Republican League," J. M. Thurston.

Argument to Meet Argument.

London, June 20.—The Women's Christian Temperance Union convention adopted a resolution declaring that the fact that their cause was combated by a mighty determined and relentless force and placing their trust in him, who is the Prince of Peace, the temperance workers represented would meet argument with patience, misjudgment with patience, denunciation with kindness and all difficulties and dangers with prayer. The total weight of the polyglot petition is now 1,400 pounds.

Butchered by Indians.

Deming, N. M., June 20.—Eight Americans who had been mining gold on the Yaqui river, in Sonora, were butchered by Indians two weeks ago. A meagre report of the crime was received to-day. The names are not given. They had been successful in obtaining gold and robbery was the motive.

CITY COMPELLED TO PAY

DAMAGES SECURED BECAUSE OF FERRY PATH CLOSING.

Muled for Twenty-six Hundred Dollars—Consolidated Railroad to Pay Life Annuity—This No Longer Connected With City Auditor's Office.

At a special meeting of the board of finance last evening four of the members of the board, Aldermen Parish and Lambert and Councilmen Dewell and Rourke were present and Mayor Hendrick presided. The most important business of the evening was the consideration of the question as to how an appropriation of about $2,500 could be raised with which to pay off a judgment for that amount secured against the city.

Several years ago Ferry Path in Fair Haven was closed as a thoroughfare and the residents of the street brought suits for damages against the city and the Consolidated road. The case was carried to the supreme court, where a decision was rendered for the residents to recover damages and costs amounting in the whole to $5,203.41. Of this amount the city is compelled to pay one-half and the railroad company one-half. After discussion it was decided to appropriate $2,500.70 and to take this amount from the sum recently paid to the city by the town for the maintenance of the city hall.

City Auditor Brown also called the attention of the board to the fact that on June 12 he had notified George S. Thomas, who has been acting as an assistant to the auditor, that his services were no longer required. Mr. Thomas claimed that he had been employed by the board of finance and declined to be removed until that body had taken action upon the matter.

January 3, 1895, the board of finance at a regular meeting appointed Mr. Thomas a clerk in the department at a salary not to exceed $1,000 per annum. Major Brown claimed that the city auditor alone had the right of appointing assistants and based his claim on section 13 of the city charter.

Corporation Counsel Ely was also present and gave it as his opinion that the claim made by the auditor was sound and that in effect the board of finance had exceeded its powers when it appointed Mr. Thomas a clerk in the department. This seemed to be the opinion of all the members of the board present and while no action was taken on the matter other than to leave it in the hands of the auditor, the result will be that Mr. Thomas will no longer be connected with the auditor's department.

YALE HARD AT WORK.

A Perfect Practice Fall Was Given on the Thames.

New London, June 20.—No crew that Yale or Harvard ever sent to the Thames has undergone such severe training here as have the "varsity eights" the past fortnight. Neither water, wind nor weather interfered with their practice, and they have kept steadily at work. The work cut out for to-day was less severe than that of yesterday. This forenoon the Harvard crew rowed down the course two miles, where the water was so rough as to keep them from going further down toward New London and Coach Watson put in the time in comparatively smooth water just below.

Yale did light work in the forenoon practice, but this evening made up for it by rowing over four miles from the bridge up. The course was smooth as a pond. There was little or no splashing. For two miles the pace was hot. The last half of the course was entered upon with the crew rowing as well as it did below the naval station. The time of the trial could not be learned, but it was not much better than the time at Yale has made at previous trials. Harvard's work was devoted to perfecting its stroke. The observation train is being prepared for the race. It will contain, as usual, about forty-two cars and will be run for only the big race.

Sued to Recover.

Buffalo, June 20.—The Aetna Insurance company has brought suit in the United States court to recover from Morris F. Sheppard, president of the Yates County National bank, a wealthy and influential citizen of Penn. Yan and a prominent politician. Charles H. Smith, an extensive merchant of Penn. Yan and Delco, C. and William Hubbard, brothers, live in the same house, 331-333, the insurance paid on George Hicks' malt house, which was burned in 1894. It is alleged Sheppard was agent for the Aetna and issued policies on the malt house in which he had an indirect interest. It is stated that Hubbard brothers confessed to having been hired by Sheppard for $200 to burn the building.

Harvard's Honorable Course.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 20.—The Oxford-Cambridge challenge to Harvard-Yale for the general athletic games will be declined by Harvard. The reasons are given in a letter just received here by a member of the Cornell athletic council from a member of the Harvard graduate committee. Harvard is taking a highly honorable course, and one that cannot fail to win her the highest respect among all the American colleges.

They Place No Confidence.

London, June 20.—The Central News says the opposition leaders of the house have decided to move a resolution setting forth that the house has no confidence in this ministry.

Well Known Painter Dead.

London, June 20.—John Evans Hodgson, a well known English painter and a member of the Royal Academy, died at Cole's Hill, Amersham, Buckinghamshire, yesterday. He was born in London March 1, 1831.

YALE WINS A CLOSE GAME

HARVARD GAVE A GOOD BATTLE
UNTIL THE SEVENTH INNING.

Highlands Was Knocked Out of the Box—President Took Carter's Place Near the End of the Game—It Was a Pretty Game and Both Teams Put Full Spirit Into It Even to the End.

Boston, June 20.—Yale defeated Harvard this afternoon in the first Harvard-Yale series of games, by a score of 7 to 4.

It was a pretty game of ball, and both teams put all that was in them into the game. The fielding of both was sure and fast, but it was the old story of weak batting that gave to Yale the game. Yale had an easy time with Highlands, especially in the seventh, when he seemed unable to keep the ball out of their way, and they were touched up right and left. Carter was in the box for Yale until the seventh, when the game, being practically won, he was replaced by Trudeau. Carter went to second. The game was of exceptional interest, owing to the great work of the teams in the field. No glaring errors were made, and there were numerous brilliant plays. Winslow got a red hot liner from Carter, which turned him over, but he held on to it. Scannell made a pretty catch of a foul after a long run. Each side made a run in the first inning.

Winslow got a red-hot liner from Carter, which turned him over, but he held on to it. Scannell made a pretty catch of a foul after a long run. Each side made a run in the first inning.

Harvard got the lead in the sixth by one run. Then came Harvard's old hood-doo inning. With one man out, Yale commenced to bat. Highlands all over the field, and before the inning was over had made three singles and two home runs, bringing in six runs in all. Harvard made two more runs in the ninth, and this was all she could do. From Harvard's point of view it was the best game the team has put up in Cambridge this year, and this, too, with a second substitute shortstop.

Whitmore was unable to play, owing to a bad ankle, and Dean had a spiked foot, so McVey had to be put in. He played an excellent game, having only one error, with one put out and five assists to his credit. In the outfield Hayes captured two good flies. Paine at center put up a star game, scooping in everything that came his way. His throwing was beautiful. The score:

TOWN HALL PACKED.

A Special Town Meeting of Interest Held at New Britain.

New Britain, June 20.—A special town meeting was held to-night for the purpose of acting on the appointment of John H. Peck, who has been principal of the high school here for thirty years. At the last meeting of the school board when the teachers were appointed for the year Mr. Peck claimed to be reappointed. The action of the school board in not appointing him to the position he held so long aroused the indignation of many of the citizens and as a result of a petition the meeting was held to-night.

The town hall was packed and the meeting lasted two hours and a half. The members of the board stated that Mr. Peck was not progressive enough and unable to maintain proper discipline in the schools, and it was for that reason that he was not reappointed. Attorney P. J. Markley, chairman of the board, offered an amendment that the matter be submitted to the citizens at the polls and this was carried by a one-third vote. The matter will be settled on Monday, the polls being open from 9 a. m. until 5 in the afternoon.

The vote on the amendment was 152 in favor and 294 against.

Harvard Has Not Replied.

A NOTED SUMMER RESORT.

Newton in this state has long been noted as a fine summer resort. Situated high up on "the everlasting hills" it commands a superb view of the surrounding country, with its diversified hills and valleys and its fertile and picturesque plains.

Pure mountain breezes uncontaminated by those admixtures which "city people" know so much about, fan and refresh the sojourners at Newton and instill new life and vigor into their frames. It is, therefore, not surprising that people from many states have from year to year gone there for comfort and recuperation. From present indications this season will be a most successful one there, as new comers are arriving daily and the "Grand Central" is steadily adding to the number of its occupants.

The Grand Central hotel, located in the center of Newton, is most dignified situated. It is a substantial and attractive building with large and airy rooms, handsomely furnished and kept scrupulously neat and clean. Connected with the house are ample grounds, where croquet, lawn tennis and other games may be indulged in. The cuisine department is under able management, and the table is supplied with the best edibles which money can buy. Polite and attentive waiters faithfully contribute their part towards making the Grand Central what it really is—namely a model hotel where every comfort and convenience may be had. A fine livery connected with the house affords facilities for enjoying drives which reveal romantic and picturesque scenery unsurpassed in the state. A fine carriage runs to all trains. Gen. Tor M. J. Houlihan, the genial and popular landlord, has now associated with him Mr. J. F. Keane, a gentleman who spares no pains in striving to make the Grand Central more popular than ever. Among the guests at the present time are: Mr. and Mrs. Bowen of West Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hagel of Detroit, Mich.; Dr. Sunderland, Miss
